MESSRS. BREWER and Talmage resumed their pulpits yesterday, after their summer vacation.

Rev. W. A. Railean, a Methodist minister of Gloversville, N. Y., attended the county fair on Friday. On the grounds was a sharper who induced the sharpers to invest $50 in three cakes of soap. The minister saw the swindler wrap a ten-dollar bill inside one of the packages, but did not see him deftly remove the package containing it and substitute one that was valueless. The soap was all the minister realized from the investment. The story of his folly reached Gloversville, and the more uncharitable of his flock advised immediate steps for his expulsion. When he arrived home a meeting of his congregation was in progress. He entered the assemblage, which was excitedly discussing his experience at the fair. The sharper advanced to the pulpit and made a full and touching confession of his action. He confessed the remorse of a guilty conscience and asked for that forgiveness which Christians accord even the vilest sinner. During his address his eyes were filled with tears and his voice quivered in the sincerity of his sorrow. His remarks made a deep impression and many of those present clasped his hand in token of forgiveness. His church is large and influential. This will remind our readers of the time that some of Tombstone's merchants, bankers, lawyers, etc., attended the circus at Benson and purchased soap.

The disguise worn by Jeff Davis at the time of his capture has recently become the subject of controversy, in which the fallen chieftain himself has taken a part. The official report on the subject, made immediately after the capture, will therefore be read with interest. It has never before published, we believe. Jeff will have to plead guilty to a woman's water-cool and a shawl.
